

Stephanie grew up in the Willamette Valley and could not imagine a more perfect area to be living her life. She is passionate about community, bringing people together for a greater good, and working hard. Stephanie's enthusiasm for her work shows in everything she does. Whether it's finding your next perfect home, selling your current home, or helping you get settled in your community, she will do it all with joy and love. When she isn't working, she can be found spending quality time with her husband Dylan and their three sons.
